Overview

MANAGING THE PROCESS - ADMINISTERING THREE ELECTORAL EVENTS

INTRODUCTION

May 17, 2005 was an historic date in British Columbia. It was the first time a provincial general election was held under a fixed election date and it was also the date of the province's first referendum on electoral reform.

Voters were given two ballots – one for election of a Member of the Legislative Assembly, and one for the referendum to determine whether B.C. should keep the existing single member plurality (SMP) electoral system, or adopt a single transferable vote (BC-STV) electoral system as recommended by the Citizens' Assembly on Electoral Reform.

Day 7 of the election period also marked the end of B.C.'s first targeted enumeration; an event designed to produce a high-quality voters list prior to the election. The planning and delivery of these three events was tightly integrated to allow Elections BC to achieve efficiencies that would otherwise not have been possible.

The integration of these three scheduled electoral events also enabled several key innovations.

- Elections BC was able to implement a comprehensive training program for District Electoral Officers and election officials, with integrated content and a just-in-time delivery model.
- Communication activities were harmonized, with messaging and materials that supported all three events delivered strategically to reach voters at appropriate times.
- Technology was implemented to improve service to voters, increase productivity, and enhance communications between Elections BC field staff and headquarters.

PREPARATIONS AND ACTIVITIES 2002 TO 2005

BUDGET REDUCTION

The normal business cycle and preparatory activities between elections were significantly impacted when Elections BC received a 45% budget reduction to be implemented through successive and cumulative 15% cuts in fiscal years 2002/03 through 2004/05. The budget reduction was stabilized at 35% for fiscal year 2004/05, and 65% of the 2001/02 allocation now represents Elections BC's annual operating budget. In real terms, the overall budget was reduced by over $3.5 million. The reductions posed a tremendous challenge to Elections BC as it was clear that the organization would not be able to meet its ongoing legislated mandate unless major changes were made.

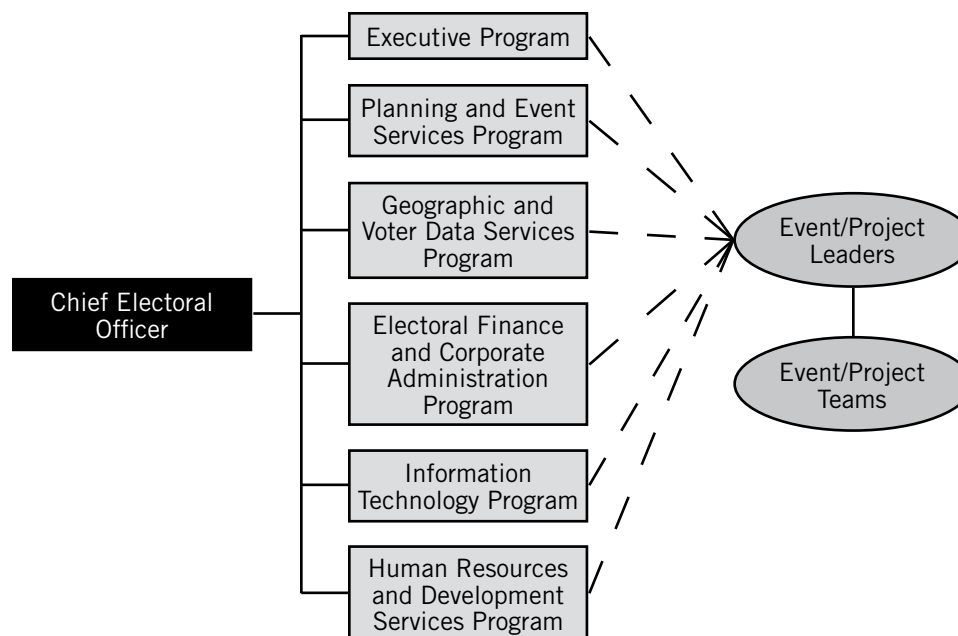

In response, Elections BC carried out a comprehensive review of its mandate, goals and core requirements and in 2002/03 initiated a significant reorganization that was not concluded until June 2004. The result was a fundamentally changed organization in terms of structure, composition, staffing levels, and business model. Overall, 16 full-time staff departed Elections BC, taking with them considerable knowledge and experience in the delivery of electoral events. With the loss of experienced and knowledgeable staff and the elimination of many programs, Elections BC recognized that in order to be successful, it would have to reinvent itself as a planning and learning organization.

A PLANNING AND LEARNING ORGANIZATION

Central to this cultural shift was the creation of two new program areas within Elections BC with specific responsibilities to lead the conceptualization and implementation of planning and learning. Planning and Event Services was charged with providing leadership in implementing a planning framework for the efficient and effective execution of Elections BC's electoral events including general elections, by-elections, referenda, and recall and initiative petitions. This program area also had the responsibility for ensuring Elections BC was provided with tools and support to enable the coordination and management of multiple events, special projects and ongoing activities in an efficient and timely manner. Human Resources and Development Services enabled a greater focus to be placed on the human side of the equation, being responsible for establishing both corporate and event recruitment and training frameworks that would allow sufficient staff to be selected and gain the knowledge necessary to successfully deliver events.

EVENT MANAGEMENT

The reorganization also required the implementation of a new event business model. With the reduction in core staff and resources, Elections BC would have to depend on temporary additional staff to lead and deliver both calendared and unscheduled events. Under the Constitution Act, provincial general elections are now held on fixed dates. However, by-elections, referenda, and recall and initiative campaigns can occur at any time, often with overlapping time frames. The new business model, designed to accommodate both types of events, is illustrated below.

EVENT PREPARATION HIGHLIGHTS BY FISCAL YEAR

2002/03

- Conducted outreach to B.C. schools to ensure youth understood the electoral process.
- Built relationships with ethnic groups to establish partnerships and increase communications regarding voter education.
- Completed conversion of address data from Provincial Voters List System (PVLS) to the new Electoral Information System (EIS).
- Ensured all residential addresses were linked to an electoral district and voting area.
- Implemented web-based training on annual financial reports of registered political parties and constituency associations.
- Developed a training framework for District and Deputy District Electoral Officers and upgraded education materials and delivery mechanisms.
- Explored cost-effective alternatives to a door-to-door general enumeration as a mechanism for ensuring a high-quality voters list prior to scheduled electoral events.

2003/04

- Commenced review of all documents used in electoral events for completeness and accuracy.
- Reviewed special voting areas to ensure that voting opportunities are accessible to voters with mobility impairments.
- Sent voter education school kits to all grade 5 and 11 classrooms across B.C. to assist teachers in educating future voters about their democratic rights and the electoral process.
- Sent information material and voter registration applications to all secondary schools, and Aboriginal band offices, tribal councils and friendship centres.
- Conducted an audit of the voters list (in conjunction with Elections Canada) to determine the quality of information on the list. Results indicated that as of March 31, 2003, only 71% of eligible voters were registered provincially, and of those, only 74% were listed at their correct address.
- Provided voters list information to the chair of the Citizens' Assembly on Electoral Reform for the purpose of selecting Assembly members.
- Trained all new District and Deputy District Electoral Officers in a two-day session in February 2004; current officers received a one-day session during the same period.

2004/05

- Completed detailed event planning and cost modeling for the targeted enumeration, the 2005 General Election and the Referendum on Electoral Reform.
- Launched targeted enumeration to improve the quality of the voters list prior to the election (refer to page 14 for details).
- Recruited District and Deputy District Electoral Officers to fill electoral district vacancies.
- Trained all District and Deputy District Electoral Officers in three three-day sessions starting September 2004.
- Implemented enhancements to EIS to increase functionality and improve data reporting.
- Developed a revised training model and materials for election officials.
- Ensured the Elections BC warehouse was stocked and procurement plans implemented to meet event readiness deadlines.

ELECTORAL GEOGRAPHY PREPARATIONS

The administration of electoral events requires maintenance of electoral districts and voting area boundaries. The 79 electoral districts created under the Electoral Districts Act were subdivided by Elections BC, under section 80 of the Election Act, into 8,462 voting areas. The Election Act requires that each voting area have no more than 400 registered voters.

Electoral geography involves the relationship between electoral boundaries and the underlying road network, topological features and population configuration of British Columbia. The establishment of appropriate voting area boundaries plays a key role in the efficiency of voting administration.

To facilitate the creation of these voting areas, Elections BC uses an advanced spatial database that shows the relationships among existing administrative boundaries (e.g. municipalities), geographic features, B.C.'s road network and an extensive register of addresses. When this information is correlated with registered voter counts, Elections BC can make informed decisions regarding voting area boundaries. Efforts are also made to harmonize provincial voting area boundaries with federal polling divisions, and municipal and regional district boundaries.

As shown in the following table, British Columbians are highly mobile. During the period from 1996 to 2001 almost half (46.3%) of B.C.'s population had made at least one residential move.

With British Columbia's high mobility rate and continuous population growth, many factors need to be considered in the process of creating voting areas. Elections BC takes into consideration demographic differences across B.C. to estimate the number of eligible voters not currently registered and adds them to the number of registered voters currently on the provincial voters list. This provides the base voting population from which voting area boundaries can be defined.

After defining the voting areas, staff produce a detailed set of maps depicting the new boundaries and their relationship to the communities, roads and geography of the province. The 2004 voting area redistribution resulted in the updating of 361 maps for use during the 2005 General Election.

OFFICIALS

In the 2005 General Election, District Electoral Officers took on a new role as District Registrars of Voters.

Due to budget reductions, four regional Elections BC offices were closed, resulting in the loss of District Registrars of Voters in the regions administered by those offices. Elections BC evaluated a range of options and decided that District Electoral Officers should be appointed as District Registrars of Voters and assigned responsibility for enumeration and voter registration activities immediately prior to and during electoral events. This administrative model is used in all other Canadian provincial electoral jurisdictions, as well as at the federal level, and provides one-stop services for voters and candidates during an election.

Service BC – Government Agents were traditionally appointed as District Registrars of Voters in regions without Elections BC staff. The decision to appoint District Electoral Officers as District Registrars of Voters necessitated changes to the longstanding relationship between Government Agents and Elections BC. On November 10, 2004, Service BC and Elections BC signed a new service level agreement.

The agreement resulted in the appointment of all Service BC – Government Agents as Deputy District Registrars of Voters. This enabled their ongoing participation in important enumeration and registration activities, such as the enumeration of special voting areas. The involvement of Service BC – Government Agents in voter registration and in commissioning nomination papers, financial filing documents and registration documents for other Elections BC clients ensured that these services remained accessible to those in more remote parts of the province.

During the 2005 General Election, at least one district electoral office was established in each of the province's 79 electoral districts. A second district electoral office was also established in six electoral districts in order to address accessibility issues resulting from population distribution, distance, or transportation routes prone to closure.

Electoral District	City of main office	City of second office
Alberni-Qualicum	Port Alberni	Qualicum
Cariboo North	Quesnel	Williams Lake
Cariboo South	Williams Lake	100 Mile House
Peace River North	Fort St. John	Fort Nelson
Powell River-Sunshine Coast	Powell River	Sechelt
West Vancouver-Garibaldi	West Vancouver	Squamish

The full slate of appointees consisted of 79 District Electoral Officers, one for each electoral district, and 85 Deputy District Electoral Officers. The additional six Deputies managed the second office in the six electoral districts with two office locations. All appointments of District Electoral Officers and their Deputies were rescinded on November 17, 2005, six months after General Voting Day, as required by section 18 of the Election Act.

Several District and Deputy District Electoral Officers resigned their appointments in the year prior to the event when they learned about their new role as District Registrars of Voters and the corresponding increased time commitment required. To replace these appointees and others who retired or found they could no longer commit to the role, Elections BC recruited 32 District Electoral Officers and 20 Deputy District Electoral Officers between January 2004 and March 2005, with the majority of the positions being filled prior to September 2004.

During the summer of 2004, Elections BC undertook a targeted advertising campaign to alert individuals to the opportunities available to serve as a Deputy or District Electoral Officer. Over 35 community papers ran advertisements and information was also available on Elections BC's website. Applications were screened and eligible applicants were interviewed by a panel consisting of an appointee and an Elections BC staff member.

At the conclusion of the recruitment effort, over one-third of the 164 officials had no previous experience as an appointee of Elections BC during a general election. This lack of experience among appointees made a comprehensive training program critical to the success of the events.

Distribution of Experience as Appointee in a Provincial Election, March 2005

	Previous experience as an appointee	No previous experience as an appointee	Total
District Electoral Officer	62	17	79
Deputy District Electoral Officer	42	43	85
Totals	104	60	164

The fixed election date permitted the training of District Electoral Officers and their Deputies to be planned and staged for optimum efficiency and effectiveness. Three training sessions were held in September 2004, January 2005 and March 2005. Training sessions built on each other, with the first laying a foundation of key concepts, and the final session covering more detailed procedural issues. Each training session was extremely well received by appointees.

In addition to these training sessions, Elections BC hosted information sessions for all appointees in February 2004, and five one-day training sessions for new appointees. On October 14 and 15 of 2005, appointees attended a post-event review conference to identify lessons learned for future events. A questionnaire was sent to appointees before the conference to identify key issues for discussion.

INFORMATION TECHNOLOGY

Information technology played an important role in the delivery of the 38th provincial general election and 2005 Referendum on Electoral Reform. This was the first time that all 79 district electoral offices, as well as the six satellite offices, were provided with computer hardware and software networked to the Chief Electoral Office through a high-speed connection. An innovative approach was used to supply the computers to the field for the April 1 to June 15 period. Rather than purchasing or renting desktop computers, Elections BC entered into an agreement with the Ministry of Labour and Citizens' Services, Common IT Services (CITS), to use new computers before they were deployed to government ministries. A high-speed laser printer was rented for each office and a purchased multipurpose device provided fax and additional printing capabilities. Installation and support of the equipment was provided by local computer companies or CITS staff, all coordinated through the Chief Electoral Office.

Connecting the high speed network in 85 offices, many of which were in remote B.C. locations, was a challenge. District Electoral Officers provided a list of potential office sites several months before they were needed. The lists were shared with CITS who worked with a telecommunications vendor to assess the difficulty of installing a high speed connection in any of the locations. A final list of approved sites was agreed to by District Electoral Officers and the network was connected by the first week of April 2005.

District electoral offices had direct access for the first time to all features of the Electoral Information System (EIS), Voting Results System (VRS), email, and Microsoft Office software. EIS gave District Electoral Officers the capability to query and update information on voting places, voters, candidates and agents, as well as temporary employees. VRS allowed District Electoral Officers to enter election results as they were received from voting places. Email provided fast communications between the Chief Electoral Office and district electoral offices. Daily emails from the Chief Electoral Office provided District Electoral Officers with a checklist of important tasks for each day. Emails were also used to deliver reports to District Electoral Officers that in previous events had been printed by the Chief Electoral Office and couriered. This saved time and money, and ensured information was as current as possible. Access to Microsoft Office allowed district electoral office staff to use word processing and spreadsheets for office tasks.

Technical support was provided to the district electoral offices in a number of ways. If District Electoral Officers encountered computer hardware or network problems, they called a dedicated Help Desk. The Help Desk responded to over 650 calls during the two and a half months it was in operation. For problems with the business aspects of the computer systems, an EIS Help group was set up to help district electoral office staff. Local information technology support staff were identified in each district electoral office community should immediate on-site help have been required. As well, contracts were put in place for hardware, software, and telecommunications support to ensure the effective operation of the entire information technology infrastructure used during the events.

Processes were also tested and put in place in case an infrastructure failure occurred. For example, manual procedures were developed for cases where EIS or VRS might become unavailable. The procedures were then tested in simulation exercises. Spare equipment was ready to be shipped should any of the computer hardware in the district electoral offices fail to work. In one instance, all the computer equipment in a district electoral office was stolen. Within eight hours, the office had been resupplied with equipment and was back in business. No data was lost, as all the information was stored on centralized servers in Victoria.

Although the use of technology improved for the 38th general election, enhancements are always possible. In recognition of the growing importance of technology in the successful delivery of events, more computers and printers will be provided at the next electoral event. EIS will be reviewed to make it more consistent and intuitive in its interface with district electoral office staff. To support the training of election officials, web-based training will be explored. And finally, tools will be investigated to assist District Electoral Officers and their staff to improve report distribution and communications, and improve access to required information.

Analysis

RESULTS

From an overall perspective, many of the strategies and innovations implemented by Elections BC proved highly successful. The fixed election date was central to many of these improvements, enabling an integrated approach to the planning and delivery of three electoral events over a 24-month period. The result was better use of technology, and significant efficiencies and quality improvements in communications, recruitment, staffing, training, and logistics.

For example, because Elections BC knew the date of the election, a high-speed internet network could be established throughout the province, improving communications between all 79 District Electoral Officers and Elections BC headquarters in Victoria. Similarly, the fixed date allowed Elections BC to develop a single communications plan with consistent and reinforcing messages. This advance planning also meant that television advertising time could be pre-purchased at discounted rates.

But, while the integrated approach was successful, without careful risk management there might have been an adverse outcome. In retrospect, the budget cutbacks of 2002/03 through 2004/05 proved to be too severe. The restructuring, including the departure of 16 full-time staff, resulted in a significant loss of corporate knowledge and experience. Although Elections BC hired many temporary, short-term employees during the events, their lack of knowledge threatened the quality of services delivered and the required levels of productivity. Elections BC was able to mitigate this risk through the tireless efforts of its remaining permanent staff and by borrowing seasoned electoral administrators from other provinces and Elections Canada to fill key roles during the events. Through the generosity of these other agencies, and the services of those administrators involved, Elections BC was able to successfully bridge the knowledge/experience gap.

A REFERENDUM IN CONJUNCTION WITH THE ELECTION

Conducting the referendum on electoral reform in conjunction with the 2005 General Election proved to be an excellent strategy from an administrative perspective. As the qualifications to vote, calendar of events, voting and registration opportunities, and voting and counting procedures were almost identical for the two events, the referendum could be designed as a “thin layer” administered on top of the election.

The approach resulted in significant efficiencies in the delivery of the referendum. The only direct cost resulting from the referendum was the production and distribution of referendum ballots. Other costs were apportioned between the election and referendum budgets, resulting in lowered costs for the election, as well as the delivery of the referendum for under $1.1 million. In contrast, had the referendum been held as a stand-alone event, the total cost could have exceeded $25 million.

Other lessons learned from conducting the referendum in conjunction with the election included:

- parallel voting processes result in a low incidence of election official error;
- voting on an additional question does not have a measurable effect on the time that voters spend at the voting place; and
- additional election officials, in some cases, should be retained to assist counting of referendum ballots to reduce workload and increase the speed of accurate reporting.

CONCLUSION

Clearly, the fixed election date had a significant positive impact on the planning and delivery of the targeted enumeration, the 2005 Referendum on Electoral Reform, and the 2005 General Election.

It is imperative to have a sufficient number of experienced and knowledgeable staff to ensure Elections BC can meet its legislative mandate. Although temporary staff can provide an additional level of support, the core knowledge and experience of electoral administration is not something that can be adequately learned during an event period. Elections BC must have a solid professional infrastructure from which to plan and deliver future electoral events.

Targeted Enumeration and Voter Registration

VOTER REGISTRATION - A NEW APPROACH

Elections BC attempts to maintain a current and accurate provincial voters list while remaining fiscally responsible. Given British Columbia's extremely mobile population, maintaining a voters list of good quality is a challenge using traditional registration techniques such as door-to-door enumerations and voter-submitted paper registration forms.

To more efficiently update voter information, Elections BC implemented a strategy to modify internal data processes to take advantage of existing data sources, such as the Insurance Corporation of British Columbia and the Vital Statistics branch of the Ministry of Health. As well, a new partnership agreement with Elections Canada (made possible by changes to the Election Act) presented efficiencies through sharing voter list information, reducing costs by minimizing redundant processes, and by developing new processes that are used by both organizations.

A new opportunity for the public to register, as well as take an on-going active role in the maintenance of their voter record, was also implemented. On September 14, 2004, Elections BC launched North America's first fully integrated online voter registration service. This tool allows eligible provincial voters to submit a registration form from the comfort of their own home 24 hours a day, seven days a week, via the internet. The ability to provide quality voter registrations, updates and confirmations in a cost-effective and timely fashion has made this a highly successful innovation.

These strategies, in conjunction with targeted in-person and mail-based enumeration, helped to produce a voters list for the 2005 General Election that included over 93% of the eligible voters of British Columbia. This level of coverage has not occurred for a number of decades. The currency of the voter data, although not meeting the desired goal of 87% by General Voting Day, showed marked improvement. Voter data that failed to meet currency standards will undergo extensive analysis to identify methods to improve future data currency.

By improving methodologies and through the use of technological innovation, Elections BC will strive to maintain a high quality provincial voters list for use in future electoral events.

TARGETED ENUMERATION 2004 TO 2005

Elections BC conducted an intensive province-wide targeted enumeration preceding the May 2005 General Election. A targeted enumeration is distinguished from traditional enumeration approaches (door-to-door or other “blanket” approaches) because it focuses on well-defined targets where there is reason to believe that voters are either not on the list, or their voter registration records are not current.

The targeted enumeration was organized into a portfolio of projects, delivered in three distinct phases, with the ultimate objective of delivering a high quality voters list prior to the provincial general election. Elections BC defined high quality to mean voter list coverage by the end of the enumeration of 90% and voter list currency of 85%. Coverage is defined as the percentage of registered voters on the list compared to the total B.C. population of eligible voters, and currency is defined as the percentage of voters on the list at the correct residential and mailing addresses.

A complete and current voters list is important for a number of reasons.

- Statistics show that people who are registered to vote are more likely to vote.
- The efficiency of voting administration is enhanced when voters pre-register. This translates into shorter waiting times for voters at voting places.
- The voters list is used by political parties, candidates and MLAs to communicate with voters.
- The voters list is used to establish campaign spending limits.
- Use of a voters list reduces the opportunity for voter fraud.

The targeted enumeration commenced in spring 2004, and concluded on April 26, 2005. The targeted enumeration cost approximately $3.4 million over fiscal years 2004/05 to 2005/06, and added 646,559 voters to the voters list. The cost per registered voter was $1.24.¹

THE THREE PHASES OF THE TARGETED ENUMERATION

The targeted enumeration was organized into three successive phases prior to the issuance of the writs for the 38th provincial general election.

Phase I – National Register of Electors (NRoE) Merger and Preparations

Phase I commenced March 1, 2004, and concluded January 6, 2005. It consisted of merging the National Register of Electors (NRoE) with the provincial voters list, and other key preparatory work including the development and implementation of an online voter registration system, changes to the Electoral Information System to enhance reporting capabilities, and District Electoral Officer training. This phase greatly increased the coverage of the B.C. voters list by adding 594,335 new voters from the NRoE, increasing the list from 2.1 million voters to 2.6 million. Provincial voters list coverage increased from 70.4% to 88.9% during this phase. Phase I costs were approximately $1.21 million.

¹ The cost per registered voter during the 1999 mail-based provincial enumeration was approximately $2.00.

Phase II – Voter Outreach

In Phase II, from January 1, 2005 to March 31, 2005, Elections BC began a comprehensive outreach program consisting of integrated communications and mail-outs to eligible B.C. voters. The voter outreach phase of the enumeration employed a householder information flyer, targeted direct mail, multi-media advertising, news releases, and community liaison officers to reach voters with the message to either register to vote, or update or confirm their registration prior to the election. The main events during voter outreach included the following:

- mailing 1.67 million householder information flyers, with an enclosed voter registration form, to B.C. residential addresses between February 17 and March 4, 2005;
- mailing 40,538 letters on March 29, 2005 to selected voters that Elections BC had targeted for voter record updates; and
- mailing 181,418 letters to valid B.C. residential addresses where Elections BC did not have any voters registered as of March 29, 2005.

The objective was to improve the quality of the voters list by confirming or updating the registration information of existing voters, and by encouraging those not on the list to register to vote. Access to registration and updating opportunities were extensive, and voters had three accessible channels to contact Elections BC: online voter registration, through the 1-800 information centre, and via pre-paid postage mail or toll-free fax. During this phase, Elections BC targeted non-current and non-registered voters who could be reached through mail and communications media. During Phase II, over 76,000 new voters were added to the provincial voters list, 30,741 voters confirmed their voter registration, and 129,374 voters updated their registration. List coverage increased to 89.5% during this phase, while list currency increased from 68.4% to 72.6%. Phase II cost $1.56 million.

Phase III – Field Outreach

Phase III, commencing April 1, 2005 and ending on April 26, 2005, was the final component of the targeted enumeration event. The primary focus of Phase III was to improve the quality of the list by targeting two specific groups: the residents of long-term care facilities and the homeless/street population (53,000 voters in total). This was an on-the-ground, in-person field enumeration where enumerators visited 125 shelters and social service agencies² and 469 long-term care facilities. During Phase III, all voters were able to register to vote or update their voter record using the three primary communication channels from Phase II: online voter registration, the 1-800 information centre, and via pre-paid postage mail or toll-free fax. Voters also had the option of registering or updating their record in person at Elections BC headquarters in Victoria, district electoral offices across the province, and at all Service BC – Government Agent offices in B.C. Phase III also involved community outreach by District Electoral Officers, whereby voter registration was encouraged during the first three weeks of April through community presentations and by distributing voter registration material. During Phase III, 19,687 new voters were added to the list, 19,187 voters confirmed their voter registration record, and 53,487 voters updated their registration. List coverage increased to 90.3%, meeting the target established for the enumeration, while list currency increased to 75.2%. Phase III cost $201,000³.

² Legislation now allows homeless persons to register to vote using a social service agency as their residence. This 2004 amendment provides increased access to voter registration for this group.

³ This cost includes only enumerator wages and associated expenses. It does not include costs related to the opening and staffing of district electoral offices, which provided support and a base for enumerators.

The targeted enumeration also required the implementation of several infrastructure projects that were critical to the overall success of the event. They included staffing the event team, measuring the quality of the voters list at key points during the event⁴, and event performance management. These projects cost approximately $453,000.

Voters List Coverage and Currency Measures During the Targeted Enumeration

LEGISLATIVE CHANGES

The following legislative changes were passed by the Legislative Assembly prior to the delivery of the province-wide targeted enumeration.

Bill 90 – 2003

Section 42 – General enumerations

The Chief Electoral Officer is no longer required to conduct a province-wide enumeration in the third calendar year after a general election.

Bill 54 – 2004

Section 32(5) and (6) – Residency requirements

Individuals who have no dwelling place may register as a voter on the basis that their place of residence is a shelter, hostel or similar institution that provides food, lodging or other social services.

Section 35(1) – Signature requirement for voter registration

The Act was amended to remove the requirement for a voter's signature at the time of registration, permitting innovations such as online voter registration.

Section 39.1 – National Register of Electors (NRoE)

This new section of the Act permits Elections BC to use the federal voters list to update and add voters to the provincial voters list.

⁴ List quality was measured by Stats BC prior to the NRoE merger (benchmark), and following Phases I, II, and III.

Analysis

RESULTS

The targeted enumeration proved to be an extremely effective approach to increasing the quality of the voters list prior to the 2005 General Election and 2005 Referendum on Electoral Reform. Elections BC added more voters to the list, and processed more voter registration transactions during the event than at any other time since voters list computerization. Further, the targeted enumeration was more cost-effective than previous enumeration events, even without allowing for cost-of-living increases.

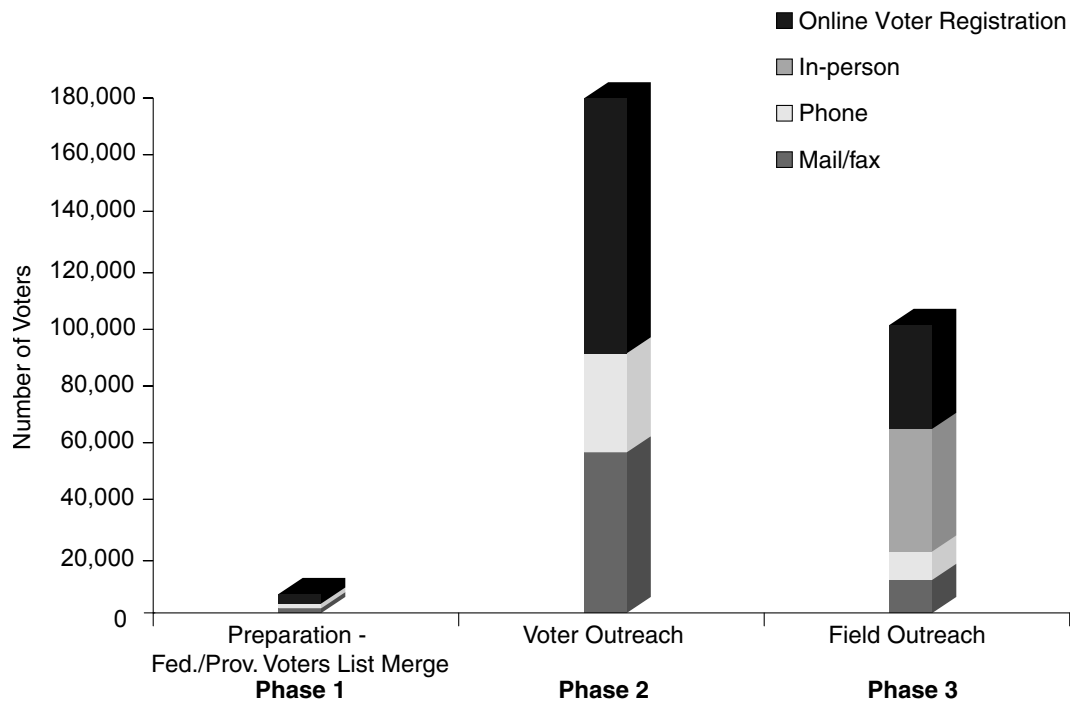

Event	Total Voters Added	Total Registration Transactions	Cost	Cost Per Added Voter	Cost Per Transaction
1989 Door-to-Door Enumeration	44,306	1,524,186	$5,876,996 (1989 $)	$132.65	$3.86
1999 Mail-based Enumeration	28,690	1,001,426	$4,005,703 (1999 $)	$139.62	$4.00
2004/05 Targeted Enumeration	646,559 ⁵	3,601,706	$3,244,918 (2005 $)	$5.02	$0.90

While the targeted enumeration was successful, and exceeded the voters list coverage goal of having 90% of the province's eligible voters registered on the list, the end results did not ultimately meet Elections BC's enumeration currency target of 85%, falling short by 9.8%. British Columbia has high population mobility, with over 46% of the population having moved between the last two census measures. On an annual basis, over 16% of B.C.'s residents move. Unless voters are motivated to take action to update their voter records with new address information, the voters list degrades by a significant factor each year. This proved to be the primary barrier to achieving Election BC's voters list currency target during the enumeration period. The targeted enumeration nevertheless proved that an integrated, multi-channel approach to targeting and communicating with voters is very effective.

⁵ Refer to page 14 for breakdown of voters added.

Voter registration activity during the enumeration phases was constant, with online voter registration being the preferred channel of contact for voters. The effectiveness of each voter outreach activity can not be accurately assessed if viewed in isolation. For example, it is misleading to simply analyze voter response to the householder information flyer solely in terms of the number of completed householder voter registration forms returned by mail. Rather, as illustrated in the following chart, activity in all communication channels increased as voters responded to the outreach activities using the response channel of their choice.

Voter Response by Phase and Channel

Peak activity levels were on March 2 during the householder information flyer mailout (13,470 transactions), on March 31 when voters received targeted mail (12,989 transactions), and on April 26 at the close of the voter registration period (12,209 transactions), as illustrated on the following page.

Daily Enumeration Transactions

COST EFFECTIVENESS

To identify the efficiency of each of the targeted enumeration channels that were used to either add voters to the list, confirm their registration, or update their voter registration record, a cost-effectiveness analysis was performed. Costs included an allocation of related overhead and advertising costs where possible. The results are displayed in the table below.

Registration Channel	Cost	Voter Transactions	Cost Per Transaction
NRoE Data Merge	$365,460	1,745,523	$0.21
Online Voter Registration	$693,209	207,522	$3.34
Mail / Fax	$525,092	68,778	$7.63
1-800 (Phone)	$596,760	55,656	$10.72
In-person	$1,015,956 ⁶	31,611	$32.14

Clearly, using the federal voters list to add new voters or update voter registration information on the provincial voters list proved to be extremely efficient. Costs per transaction for online voter registration should decline dramatically during the next business cycle, as one-time development costs will be removed from the equation⁷. In terms of both effectiveness and efficiency, a targeted enumeration approach was significantly better than previously employed methods of voter enumeration.

⁶ To accurately estimate support costs for the in-person enumeration conducted during the field outreach phase of the targeted enumeration, a portion of district electoral office and staff costs (which have been fully charged to the provincial general election) were included in the estimate. Thus total costs indicated in this table will not equal enumeration total costs indicated on page 53.

⁷ Elections BC anticipates ongoing online voter registration costs will be between 15¢ to 20¢ per transaction.

General Election

INTRODUCTION

The 38th provincial general election marked the first time voters in British Columbia, or any Canadian province, voted in a fixed date provincial election. The date of the May 17, 2005 election had been known since 2002 when the Constitution Act was amended, requiring that General Voting Day be the second Tuesday in May every four years.

The Premier of British Columbia must still formally request the Lieutenant Governor to dissolve the provincial parliament and order a general election. An election is called by an Order in Council directing the Chief Electoral Officer to prepare and issue the writs of election. Each writ is signed by the Chief Electoral Officer and the Lieutenant Governor and issued to the District Electoral Officer of each electoral district. A writ of election includes the dates for the nomination of candidates, General Voting Day and when the writ must be returned to the Chief Electoral Officer.

On April 19, 2005, Lieutenant Governor Iona Campagnolo dissolved the Legislative Assembly and an Order in Council was issued directing the Chief Electoral Officer to issue the writs of election to all 79 electoral districts, ordering that the general election be held on Tuesday, May 17, 2005.

During the 2005 General Election, voters were provided two ballots – one for the election of a Member of the Legislative Assembly and one for the 2005 Referendum on Electoral Reform. Under the Electoral Reform Referendum Act, the referendum was conducted in conjunction with the general election. For voting results and more information about the 38th provincial general election and referendum see the Statement of Votes, 38th Provincial General Election, May 17, 2005 and Statement of Votes, Referendum on Electoral Reform, May 17, 2005.

ELECTION OFFICIALS

A District Electoral Officer is appointed by the Chief Electoral Officer to administer the election in each of the 79 electoral districts in the province. For the first time, District Electoral Officers were also appointed as District Registrars of Voters, responsible for conducting enumerations and other voter registration activities in their electoral districts.

At least one Deputy District Electoral Officer is appointed by the Chief Electoral Officer to assist the District Electoral Officer. Each Deputy District Electoral Officer was also appointed as Deputy District Registrar of Voters for their electoral district.

Service BC – Government Agents were appointed by the Chief Electoral Officer as Deputy District Registrars of Voters. Service BC – Government Agents provide voters with convenient access to voter registration services and electoral information in 59 offices across B.C.

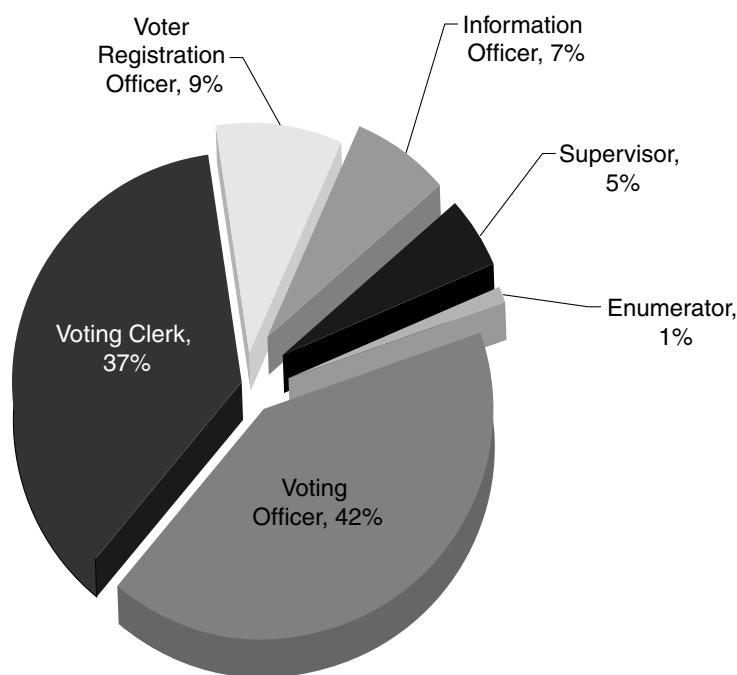

District Electoral Officers are responsible for an enormous recruitment and training effort. During a period of about three weeks, they must ensure that close to 30,000 election officials have been recruited, appointed and trained to deliver the event. In larger electoral districts, this requires a significant amount of travel. As a general rule, District Electoral Officers hire and train about 10 percent more election officials than are required to fill available positions. This provides them with the flexibility needed to accommodate unforeseen circumstances that may arise during advance voting or on General Voting Day.

Before Writ Day, Elections BC receives numerous requests for information from individuals interested in working as election officials. To facilitate the recruitment process, Elections BC introduced an online application facility on its website. Applications received through the Elections BC website were batched and sent to the appropriate district electoral offices. Almost three-quarters of those who submitted applications online were subsequently hired by District Electoral Officers.

District Electoral Officers were also active in their communities recruiting election officials. They placed advertisements in local papers, worked with community agencies and schools, contacted former officials and put up employment posters in public places.

In total, 29,676 election officials were hired and trained by District Electoral Officers across the province to administer the 2005 General Election. These election officials worked in 1,656 voting places – 191 advance voting places and 1,465 general voting places. In addition, a total of 862 people were hired to provide administrative support in the district electoral offices.

The vast majority (79%) of election officials worked as Voting Officers or Voting Clerks.

NOMINATION OF CANDIDATES

To be nominated as a candidate for election as a Member of the Legislative Assembly, an individual must be qualified for nomination under the Constitution Act and the Election Act and file all necessary documents for either a standing nomination or an ordinary nomination.

For the 38th provincial general election, nomination of candidates closed at 1 p.m. (Pacific time), Wednesday, May 4, 2005. Four hundred and twelve candidates were nominated, representing 25 of the 45 registered political parties. The following table shows the number of candidates endorsed by each registered political party, as well as the number of independent and unaffiliated candidates. The political party name is as it appeared on the election ballots.

LAST MINUTE FILERS

The standing nomination process allows nominees to enjoy the benefits of candidacy earlier in the election period than the ordinary nomination process. These benefits include access to the voters list and the ability to issue tax receipts for political contributions. In early October 2004, the Chief Electoral Officer sent a letter to all registered political parties emphasizing the financial and logistical advantages of the standing nomination process and encouraging them to make use of it. The promotion of the standing nomination process was moderately successful. Over half (59%) of the 412 candidates in the 2005 General Election filed standing nominations compared to 41% of the 456 candidates in the 2001 General Election.

Number of Nominations by Nomination Process - 2001 General Election and 2005 General Election

	Standing Nominations	Ordinary Nominations	Total Candidates
2001 General Election	189	267	456
2005 General Election	243	169	412

While a higher proportion of candidates used the standing nomination process in 2005 than in 2001, about 27% of all nominations were filed during the last three days of the nomination period. Between Day 1 and Day 12 of the election period, relatively little nomination activity occurred, with the exception of Day 6 – the first day of ordinary nominations in the 2005 General Election. It appears that a significant proportion of candidates file near the end of the nomination period, regardless of its length or the benefits of early candidacy.

Nominations Filed by Day of Election Period - 2005 General Election

Several important projects cannot be completed until the conclusion of nominations on Day 15. These include the final proofing of candidate data, ballot proofing and printing, production of the List of Candidates, and production and distribution of a statutory notice providing information on candidates and voting opportunities. The length of the nomination period and the volume of last-minute candidates created time pressures for the completion of these projects. The pressures were particularly pronounced in rural electoral districts where it is difficult to produce and distribute the ballots to remote areas in time for advance voting, which began on Day 22 of the 2005 General Election. Given that the fixed election date provides an opportunity for everyone to plan, it appears the close of nominations is unnecessarily late in the election period.

VOTING

The Election Act provides British Columbians numerous voting opportunities. While the great majority of voters cast ordinary ballots during advance and general voting (95.04% in the 2005 General Election), voters have been increasingly taking advantage of other voting opportunities.

If voters are unable to attend their assigned voting place, they may vote at any other voting opportunity in the province. For the 2005 General Election, voters could vote at any of the 85 district electoral offices starting on April 19, the day the writs of election were issued, as well as by mail if a voter expected to be out of the province or for other reasons permitted by the Election Act.

The following table shows the number of voters who used each voting opportunity during the 2005 General Election. As some voters only participated in either the election or referendum, participation numbers differ between the two events. For the number of voters who used each voting opportunity in the referendum, see page 38 of this report.

ADVANCE VOTING TURNOUT

The 2005 General Election saw an unprecedented increase in turnout at advance voting, up 80 percent over the 2001 General Election. While the trend toward increased participation in advance voting has been evident for several elections, the magnitude of the increase was not accurately predicted by Elections BC. This resulted in line-ups at some advance voting places and challenges for election officials responsible for counting ballots. Some officials had in excess of 1,000 ballots for each of the election and the referendum to count after the four days of voting had concluded. The dramatic increase in turnout at advance voting was most likely due to the fact that, for the first time, advance voting locations were listed on the Where to Vote cards mailed to all registered voters.

Advance Voting Turnout - 2001 vs. 2005

MAKING VOTING ACCESSIBLE

Elections BC is very grateful to several organizations for their assistance in making voting more accessible to certain groups that are difficult to reach. The Canadian Coast Guard provided transportation for a team of two election officials to bring voting to lighthouse attendants who could not leave their posts to attend other voting opportunities. The Department of National Defence helped to ensure that armed forces personnel from British Columbia stationed outside the province were aware of the options available to them to vote in the provincial election and referendum. Correctional Services Canada and the provincial ministries of Children and Family Development, and Public Safety and Solicitor General assisted Elections BC in arranging voting opportunities at 22 correctional facilities and youth custody centres located throughout the province.

Across the province, 154 mobile teams of election officials brought voting to people who could not attend established voting opportunities. This included voters in acute care hospitals, correctional facilities or detention centres and remote work camps. These teams also visited 465 long-term care facilities to administer voting to residents.

INNOVATION IN BALLOT PRINTING

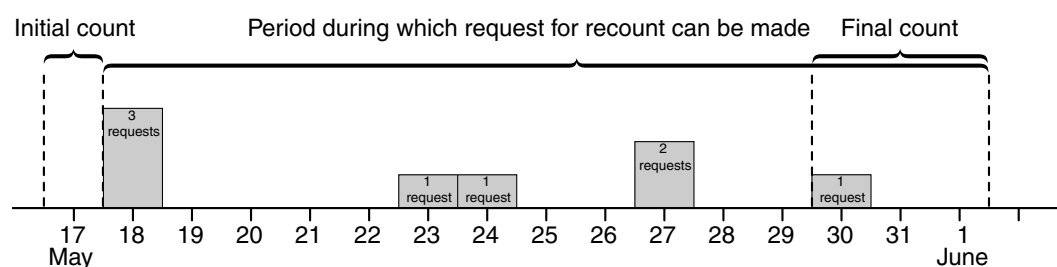

Elections BC partnered with Queen’s Printer to introduce a new approach to ballot printing in the 2005 General Election. The previous model, which involved warehousing and shipping fragile ballot paper to selected printers who then typeset the ballot and faxed the proof to Elections BC for sign-off, was replaced with a model that makes effective use of the services of local printers and technology advances. In the 2005 General Election, District Electoral Officers worked with printers in their communities who supplied the paper used to make ballots. Elections BC provided the printers with a digital security image to be printed on the back of the paper to ensure opacity. The candidate side of the ballot was typeset and proofed at Queen’s Printer when nominations closed on Day 15 of the election, and then emailed to the printers. Upon receiving the digital image of the candidate side of the ballot, printers and District Electoral Officers conducted a final proof before the ballots were printed.

RECOUNTS

As part of final count, District Electoral Officers may recount some or all of the ballots considered at initial count. Candidates or their official agents may request a District Electoral Officer recount at any time between the conclusion of initial count and the conclusion of final count. In the 2005 General Election, the period during which a District Electoral Officer recount could be requested was from Wednesday, May 18 to Wednesday, June 1. Final count began on Monday, May 30 and concluded on Wednesday, June 1.

Eight requests for District Electoral Officer recounts were received in the 2005 General Election; the highest number since the 1986 General Election when there were 10. A ninth recount was requested by a candidate in the electoral district of Alberni-Qualicum, but the request was subsequently withdrawn. All eight recounts were concluded by June 1, 2005.

Distribution of Requests for District Electoral Officer Recount, by Date

In order to prepare for a recount, District Electoral Officers must hire between 15 and 20 teams of ballot counters, secure a space that can accommodate the election officials, scrutineers and candidates, and train staff in recount procedures. All of this must be accomplished during a period when District Electoral Officers are preparing for final count. The late submission of some of the recount requests made it logistically challenging for District Electoral Officers to deliver the recounts.

The following table shows the preliminary results upon completion of the recounts. Reasons for the difference between preliminary vote counts included: accepting ballots that were previously rejected, rejecting ballots that were previously accepted, correcting tabulation and addition errors, correcting numeric transposition and other clerical errors, and correcting data entry errors made during the initial count.

Vancouver-Burrard	Lorne Mayencourt	LIB	11,205	11,201
	Tim Stevenson	NDP	11,217	11,218

Upon completion of the final count on June 1, 2005, the District Electoral Officer for the electoral district of Vancouver-Burrard made an application to the Supreme Court for a judicial recount. Under section 139(5)(b) of the Election Act, a judicial recount must be requested if the difference in votes received by the leading two candidates is less than 1/500 of the total ballots considered. After the final count, Lorne Mayencourt had 12,023 votes and Tim Stevenson had 12,005, a difference of less than 1/500 of the total ballots considered.

On Return Day, June 8, 2005, the writs of election were returned to the Chief Electoral Officer from all electoral districts but Vancouver-Burrard. On that day, the Chief Electoral Officer certified to the Clerk of the Legislative Assembly the election of 78 of the 79 Members of the Legislative Assembly.

The judicial recount in Vancouver-Burrard was conducted by Associate Chief Justice Patrick Dohm on June 6 and 7, 2005. Within two days following the conclusion of a judicial recount, a candidate may appeal the decision to the Supreme Court. This appeal period ended at the close of business on June 9, 2005, with no notice of appeal filed. On June 10, 2005, Justice Dohm certified the election of Lorne Mayencourt with 12,009 votes; Tim Stevenson received 11,998 votes. The Chief Electoral Officer subsequently provided the Clerk of the Legislative Assembly with a certified report declaring Lorne Mayencourt as the Member elected for Vancouver-Burrard.

On June 22, 2005, Tim Stevenson filed a petition with the Supreme Court of B.C. to challenge the validity of the election in the electoral district of Vancouver-Burrard. Under Part 8 of the Election Act, a candidate in the election, a voter for the electoral district or the Chief Electoral Officer may make an application to the Supreme Court of B.C. for a declaration regarding the right of an individual to take office or the validity of an election. Mr. Stevenson withdrew the petition on July 20, 2005.

PUBLIC EDUCATION, INFORMATION AND SUPPORT

Part of Elections BC's mandate is to educate voters on the electoral process. In preparation for the May 17, 2005 provincial general election, Elections BC developed a comprehensive communications strategy to educate voters about their electoral rights, the electoral process and where they could quickly find the information they needed.

The communications strategy included: advertising in movie theatres, television, cable TV, radio, and local newspapers; developing a comprehensive website; distributing Where to Vote cards; hiring liaison officers; providing news releases and media advisory notices; and extended hours of operation for a 1-800 information centre.

LIAISON OFFICERS

As a result of declining voter participation, Elections BC hired four liaison officers from November 2004 until May 31, 2005. Their role was to raise awareness of the electoral process and improve participation rates in the targeted communities and groups that have historically participated at a lower rate than the general population in British Columbia elections. The liaison officer was first used in the 2001 provincial general election when Elections BC hired an Aboriginal liaison officer. For the 2005 election, Elections BC hired Aboriginal, youth, Indo-Canadian and Chinese liaison officers.

Elections BC paid particular attention to young voters, whose rate of participation has been especially low – only 27% of youth 18 to 24 years of age voted in the May 2001 provincial general election. The youth liaison officer attended 15 events, communicated directly with 27,000 youth and contacted 3,000 organizations. These organizations included post-secondary institutions, libraries, youth employment centres, student associations, schools, major youth employers and youth-oriented media. The liaison efforts assisted in increasing youth participation rates in the May 2005 election. Over 125,000 eligible youth 18 to 24 years of age, or 35.27%, voted in the 2005 General Election.

TRANSLATED INFORMATION

Elections BC translated registration and voting information into 16 languages. The translations were distributed throughout the province by the liaison officers and District Electoral Officers. Copies were also available at every voting location and on Elections BC's website.

16 languages:

Arabic, Cantonese, Croatian, Filipino, French, Hindi, Japanese, Korean, Mandarin, Persian, Polish, Punjabi, Russian, Serbian, Spanish, and Vietnamese.

ADVERTISING

For the first time, Elections BC played a motivational advertisement in 59 movie theatres across British Columbia, from April 19 to May 17, 2005. The advertisement was designed to remind voters of the importance of democratic participation and encourage them to vote. An estimated 1.2 million people viewed this advertisement.

ELECTIONS BC'S WEBSITE

Elections BC developed a new section on their website specifically for the election. Election BC's website is its primary tool for delivering information to the public and promoting openness and transparency in the electoral process. This special section was designed to be more functional, accessible and comprehensive. Voters could quickly locate their voting place by entering their address information; a map would appear that provided detailed directions from the voter's home to their assigned voting place.

Voters who were out of the province during the election period were able to request a mail-in voting package online by visiting Elections BC's website. Voters were also able to register, update or confirm their voter registration information online until the close of general registration at midnight on April 26, 2005. British Columbia is the first jurisdiction in North America to provide comprehensive online voter registration services. Other information available on the website included district electoral office details, candidates, past election results and statistics, and information about registration and voting opportunities.

Elections BC's website has proved to be a leading resource for voters, the media and other clients. The number of visits to Elections BC's website ranged from 2,732 to 15,930 per day during the campaign period, with a peak of 50,779 visits on General Voting Day.

MEDIA RELATIONS

The media played an integral part in ensuring voters were provided with accurate and timely information during the election period. Elections BC issued four news releases, numerous media advisory notices and participated in over 2,000 television, radio and newspaper interviews.

1-800 INFORMATION CENTRE

Eighty operators were employed in the Elections BC 1-800 information centre. Extended hours of operation for the centre were in place from Writ Day (April 19) until the close of voting on May 17, 2005. Operators were available Monday to Friday, 8 a.m. to 8 p.m. and Saturdays and Sundays from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. During the 29-day campaign period, the 1-800 information centre assisted the public with 55,148 phone inquiries.

VOTERS WITH SPECIAL NEEDS

One of the three goals in Elections BC's 2004/05 - 2006/07 Service Plan is ensuring the electoral process is accessible and inclusive. One of the strategies to meet this goal was improving voting tools for visually impaired voters.

In November 2004, Elections BC met with the Canadian National Institute for the Blind, National Federation of the Blind, Advocates for Equality, BC Blind Sports and Recreation Association, Canadian National Institute for the Blind, BC Association of the Deaf-Blind, Western Association of Persons with Visual Impairments, Advocates for Sight Impaired Consumers, and the Canadian Council of the Blind to discuss possible barriers to the electoral process.

From these discussions and past research with other electoral agencies across Canada and some U.S. states, Elections BC formulated nine strategies for the May 17, 2005 provincial general election to increase accessibility for voters with disabilities.

1. Training Elections BC election officials: The election officials' training manual and video was expanded to include additional information on assisting voters with disabilities.
2. Signage: Training on the placement of signage (both type and placement) was incorporated into the District Electoral Officer training video.
3. Web accessibility: Elections BC implemented a software program to ensure Elections BC's website met universal standards for accessibility for voters with visual impairment.
4. VoicePrint Canada: VoicePrint Canada produced audio versions of Elections BC's advertisements and infomercials on voting opportunities and voting procedures. VoicePrint's core target audience is blind or vision-impaired Canadians.
5. Braille number stickers for voting template: Braille numbering was added to the voting template to accommodate general voting. This allowed voters with a visual impairment to mark their ballot independently.
6. Braille Yes and No stickers for voting template: Braille Yes and No stickers were added to the voting template to facilitate use of the referendum ballot.
7. Large print: Elections BC employed large print documents whenever possible. Elections BC also produced an 11" by 17" copy of each of the ordinary ballot and referendum ballot for posting in all voting places.
8. Lighting in the voting place: Elections BC provided specific training and guidance on lighting and placement of voting stations at the voting place.
9. User-group representatives participated in Elections BC's election official training video: The Canadian National Institute for the Blind and Advocates for Sight Impaired Consumers participated in the training video for election officials. The training video provided specific information on assisting voters with disabilities.

PARTICIPATION

More voters voted in the 2005 General Election than in any previous B.C. election, including federal elections. 1,774,269 voters turned out to vote at the May 17, 2005 provincial general election.

Although more voters turned out to vote, the proportion of eligible participants increased only slightly. In the 1983 election, 70% of eligible British Columbians voted. Participation dropped steadily in the '86, '91 and '96 provincial general elections. By 2001, turnout had dropped to 55%. During the 2005 General Election, 58.19% of those eligible cast a ballot.

Elections BC was very pleased to see a reverse in the trend of declining voter participation in British Columbia. However, while the decline in participation may have stopped it did not dramatically reverse. In order to continue to remove barriers to the electoral process and further educate voters on the electoral process, Elections BC commissioned Stats BC to conduct a province-wide survey of eligible voters who did not vote on May 17, 2005.

In preparation for future events, Elections BC will use the survey results to develop a broader understanding of why eligible voters choose not to vote and determine strategies required to further remove barriers to the electoral process.

Referendum on Electoral Reform

INTRODUCTION

On May 17, 2005, a referendum on electoral reform was held in conjunction with British Columbia's 38th provincial general election. The referendum was a province-wide vote on whether to change to the BC-STV electoral system, as recommended by the Citizens' Assembly on Electoral Reform.

The ballot question, as established in the final report of the Citizens' Assembly, was "Should British Columbia change to the BC-STV electoral system as recommended by the Citizens' Assembly on Electoral Reform? Yes/No."

Two thresholds were established for the referendum to pass. In order for the results to be binding on government, at least 60 percent of the validly cast ballots province-wide, and a simple majority in at least 48 of the 79 electoral districts, had to be in favour of adopting BC-STV.

At the conclusion of final count, 57.69% of the validly cast ballots province-wide were in favour of adopting BC-STV. In 77 of the 79 electoral districts, over 50% support was achieved. Because only one threshold had been achieved, government was not obliged to introduce the BC-STV electoral system.

CITIZENS' ASSEMBLY ON ELECTORAL REFORM

The Citizens' Assembly on Electoral Reform was created in April 2003 with the unanimous support of the Legislative Assembly.

Based on recommendations by Gordon Gibson, a prominent British Columbian, the mandate of the Citizens' Assembly as established in its terms of reference was to "assess models for electing Members of the Legislative Assembly and issue a report recommending whether the current model for these elections should be retained or another model should be adopted."

A special committee of the Legislature was established to review the appointment of the Assembly chair and senior staff, and receive status reports on the work of the Assembly.

The Citizens' Assembly was an independent, non-partisan assembly of citizens composed of 161 members – one man and one woman randomly selected from each of the 79 electoral districts, plus two First Nations members and a chair.

The work of the Citizens' Assembly was divided into five phases. The first, establishment of the secretariat, began with the appointment of the chair, Jack Blaney. An office was established in Vancouver and staff were hired to support the administrative, education and communications needs of the Citizens' Assembly. Selection of members of the Assembly was conducted from August to December 2003. Following a voter registration and awareness campaign, individuals were randomly selected from the provincial voters list. Those selected were contacted and invited to attend regional selection meetings, where a random draw was conducted to select two members from each electoral district.

The learning phase was from January to April 2004, during which time the Citizens' Assembly studied various electoral systems. At the end of the learning phase, a preliminary statement was issued by the Citizens' Assembly. The public hearings phase was in May and June 2004. Fifty public hearings were conducted throughout the province. The Assembly also accepted written submissions. By the closing date in September 2004, over 1,600 written submissions had been received.

The final phase, the deliberation phase, was from September to November 2004. During this phase, the Assembly members considered all the submissions and presentations made to the Assembly, and determined that a form of the single transferable vote electoral system was the system they believed was best for British Columbia. In December 2004, the Citizens' Assembly issued its final report, recommending the province adopt a new electoral system called BC-STV.

LEGISLATIVE FRAMEWORK

A number of Acts and Regulations provided the legislative framework for the 2005 Referendum on Electoral Reform. While the Electoral Reform Referendum Regulation established the specific procedures for administering the referendum, the referendum was also governed by the Election Act, Referendum Act and the Electoral Reform Referendum Act.

The Electoral Reform Referendum Act required a referendum to be held in conjunction with the 2005 General Election if the Citizens' Assembly on Electoral Reform recommended in their final report an electoral system different than the existing single member plurality (first-past-the-post) electoral system. The Act established that the referendum, if required, would be held in conjunction with the May 17, 2005 General Election.

The Electoral Reform Referendum Act also established special rules for the referendum, replacing certain provisions of the Referendum Act under which the referendum was conducted. Most notably, the level of voter approval needed for the referendum result to be binding on government was higher than the simple majority required under the Referendum Act. The Act also required the Chief Electoral Officer to announce the referendum results, rather than the Lieutenant Governor in Council as required by the Referendum Act.

The Electoral Reform Referendum Regulation under the Referendum Act provided the framework for administering the referendum. In addition, the Regulation established the referendum question, as recommended by the Citizens' Assembly. While the Electoral Reform Referendum Regulation prescribed the referendum process, many of the sections are references to the Election Act – the Regulation simply established which sections of the Election Act were to apply for the purposes of the referendum.

The calendar of events for the referendum generally paralleled the calendar of events for the general election. However, the Electoral Reform Referendum Regulation established the referendum campaign period as the period beginning on March 1, 2005 and ending at the close of voting on General Voting Day.

The Regulation established that the procedures for conducting the referendum would be, with certain exceptions, the same as for the general election. Voters could vote in the referendum at any voting opportunity at which they were entitled to vote in the general election, and counting of the referendum ballots occurred on the same days as the counting of the ballots for the election. The Regulation also established that members of the Citizens' Assembly on Electoral Reform could be present during referendum voting and counting as observers.

Legislation did not establish a role for "Yes/No" groups. Referendum advertising sponsors were required to register, include identification statements on all advertising and submit financial reports following the referendum. No spending limits were in place for referendum advertising sponsors.

VOTER INFORMATION AND AWARENESS

With a referendum being held in conjunction with the provincial general election, Elections BC was able to educate voters for both electoral events using the same communications materials and channels. In order to ensure its neutral role in the conduct of the referendum, Elections BC did not provide information on the single transferrable vote (BC-STV) system recommended by the Citizens' Assembly and the current single member plurality (SMP) system. While Elections BC ensured voters had information on voter registration opportunities and information on the administration of the referendum, government was responsible for promoting awareness and understanding of the two electoral systems.

In March 2005, a Referendum Information Office was established by government to help voters make an informed choice on the referendum question. The Referendum Information Office's mandate was to provide information about the current electoral system and the proposed BC-STV system that was recommended by the Citizens' Assembly on Electoral Reform. To ensure voters were informed on the referendum, the Referendum Information Office created a website and fact sheets, mailed a brochure to every residential household in the province, and established a toll-free information line available to voters Monday to Friday, 7:30 a.m. to 5:00 p.m. until General Voting Day.

VOTING

The 2005 Referendum on Electoral Reform was administered as a thin layer of additional procedures to the established general election procedures. This was done in order to realize efficiencies and to minimize voter confusion between the two electoral events.

The Electoral Reform Referendum Regulation established which specific provisions of the Election Act also applied to the referendum. Important rules and procedures that were the same included:

- qualifications to vote in the referendum were identical to those for the election;
- voters could vote in the referendum at the same voting opportunities available for the election;
- voters deposited their referendum ballot and election ballot together into the same ballot box;
- if voting by absentee ballot, the referendum ballot and election ballot were placed together into the same certification envelope;
- voters could register to vote in conjunction with voting in both the referendum and general election; and
- voters signed the same voting book for the election and the referendum.

However, the Electoral Reform Referendum Regulation also established special provisions for voting in the referendum, including:

- a referendum ballot that was easy to distinguish from the election ballot when folded;
- a copy of the Final Report of the Citizens' Assembly on Electoral Reform was required at each voting opportunity as a reference for voters; and
- voters were not required to vote in both the election and the referendum; voters could decline one of the ballots and vote in either the election or referendum.

While the great majority of voters cast ballots during advance and general voting in the 2005 Referendum on Electoral Reform, voters have been increasingly taking advantage of other voting opportunities.

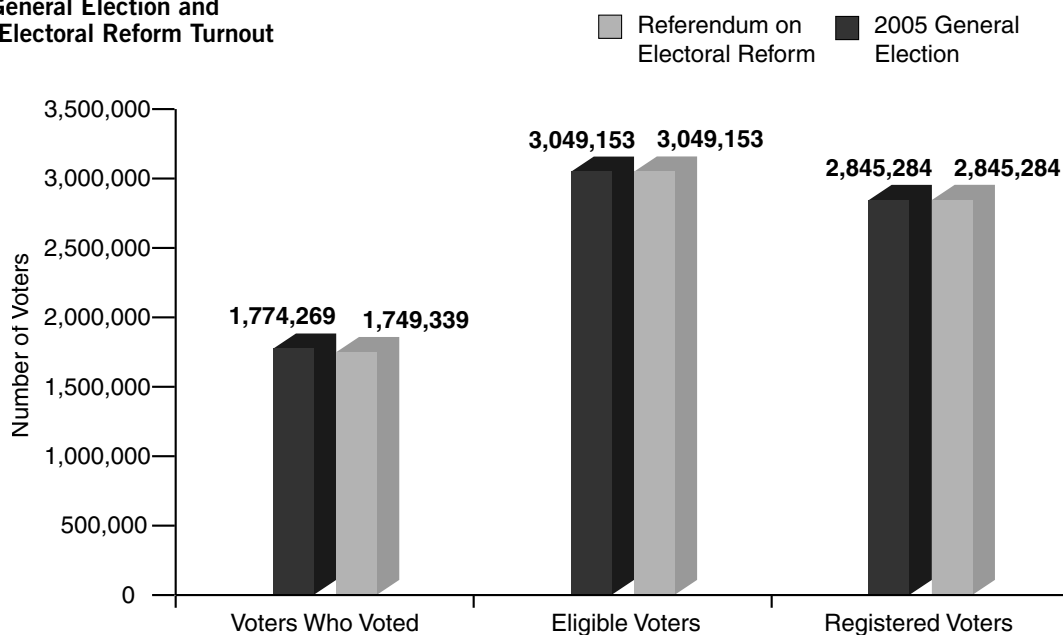

If voters were unable to vote at their assigned voting place, they could vote at any other voting opportunity in the province. In addition, voters could vote at any of the 85 district electoral offices around the province starting on April 19, the day the writs of election were issued. Voters could also vote by mail if they expected to be out of the province or for other reasons provided under the Election Act.

The table on the following page shows the number of voters who used each voting opportunity during the 2005 Referendum on Electoral Reform. As some voters only participated in either the election or referendum, participation numbers differ between the two events. For the number of voters who used each voting opportunity in the election, see page 24 of this report.

Voting opportunity	Section of Election Act	Number of votes considered	% of votes considered
General voting	s. 96	1,425,566	81.49%
Advance voting	s. 97	195,168	11.16%
Special voting	s. 98	4,022	0.23%
Absentee voting in electoral district	s. 99	39,803	2.28%
Absentee voting out of electoral district	s. 100	16,507	0.94%
Absentee advance voting	s. 101	2,908	0.17%
Alternative absentee voting (in district electoral office)	s. 104	15,182	0.87%
Alternative absentee voting (voting by mail)	s. 106	3,576	0.20%
Rejected ballots		46,607	2.66%
Total votes considered		1,749,339	100.00%

There were 24,930 fewer votes considered for the referendum than the election. This reflects the option available to voters to decline a ballot and vote in either the election or referendum. Although fewer votes were considered in the referendum than the election, the number of rejected referendum ballots exceeds that of the election by 34,681. This suggests that many voters who were issued a referendum ballot simply left it blank.

May 17, 2005 General Election and Referendum on Electoral Reform Turnout

The higher rates of declined ballots and rejected ballots in the referendum compared to the election may reflect a general discomfort among the electorate with their level of understanding of the new electoral process. A poll conducted by Nordic Research between May 31 and June 1 found that over half (53%) of those who voted against the new electoral system did so because they did not feel knowledgeable.

SUMMARY OF REFERENDUM RESULTS

The voting results for the 2005 Referendum on Electoral Reform were determined during the initial count and final count in the same manner as the voting results for the general election. However, counting of the votes for the two electoral events was conducted separately; election officials were required to complete the initial count for the election before conducting the initial count for the referendum. The final count for the election was completed before the final count for the referendum began.

Referendum ballots from advance voting and general voting were counted at the initial count, following the close of voting on General Voting Day (8 p.m. Pacific time). The initial count is the preliminary count of votes marked on the ballots in the referendum, other than those contained in certification envelopes.

Ballots contained in certification envelopes from other voting opportunities, such as absentee voting and special voting, were considered at the final count. The final count is a count of the ballots in the referendum that were not considered as part of the initial count, and a determination of the results of the referendum based on the votes accepted in the initial count and final count.

The final count began at 9 a.m. on May 30, 2005 – Day 41 of the referendum period, 13 days after General Voting Day. During the period between the initial count and final count, certification envelopes containing absentee ballots were shipped to the appropriate District Electoral Officers. The final count was held in the district electoral office and continued for up to three days. Following completion of the final count, the District Electoral Officer declared the referendum result for the electoral district.

Two thresholds were set by the Electoral Reform Referendum Act for the referendum results to be binding on government: at least 60% of the valid votes cast in support of the question stated on the referendum ballot, and in at least 48 of the 79 electoral districts, more than 50% of the valid votes cast in support of that question. Based on the final results, only one of the two thresholds was met.

The Chief Electoral Officer released the final results of the referendum on June 8, 2005, in accordance with the Electoral Reform Referendum Act.

	Threshold requirement	Final results	Threshold reached
Threshold 1	At least 60% of valid votes cast vote 'yes'	57.69% of the total valid votes cast voted 'yes'	No
Threshold 2	In at least 48 of 79 electoral districts more than 50% of valid votes cast vote 'yes'	77 electoral districts voted 'yes' by more than 50%	Yes

As part of the final count, District Electoral Officers were able to recount some or all of the referendum ballots that were considered at the initial count if they had concerns regarding the validity of the results reported. The results of the 2005 referendum were final, subject to a judicial recount. No recounts of the initial count of the referendum ballots were conducted, and no requests were made for judicial recounts of the referendum ballots.

Conclusion

The three electoral events that occurred in spring 2005 represent a unique occurrence in the electoral history of British Columbia. The process of planning for, administering and reflecting on the targeted enumeration, the 38th provincial general election, and the referendum on electoral reform led to several key conclusions.

First and foremost, the core staffing level at Elections BC must be adequate to meet the challenges of administering future electoral events. Failure in this area poses an unacceptable risk in provincial electoral administration.

Technology is not a panacea. While it offers the potential for efficiencies and convenience, it must be well managed to avoid failures and undue dependencies. The human side of the technology equation must also be carefully considered and planned for, to ensure effective and appropriate adoption of technological innovations.

Fixed election dates are a tremendous asset to electoral administration. They do, however, carry public expectations that service delivery will be of even higher quality than in a non-scheduled event. Further, as staff and material costs account for the majority of event spending, efficiencies realized through a fixed election date will not necessarily translate into significant cost savings.

Administering a referendum in conjunction with an election is a very efficient administrative model. The election provided the base infrastructure for the referendum, allowing it to be administered as a “thin layer” on top of election processes. However, there is legitimate debate on whether this timing permitted adequate public attention to the referendum question.

As a result of Elections BC’s experience, requirements for legislative change have been identified to address aspects of the Election Act and other Acts that do not permit efficient electoral administration. These will be published in a separate report entitled Report of the Chief Electoral Officer – Recommendations for Legislative Change, to be tabled with the Legislative Assembly before the end of March, 2006.

Lastly, low levels of voter participation remains a serious issue, with disengaged voters comprising a significant percentage of those who choose not to participate⁸. This not only affects voter turnout, but also impacts currency of the voters list. Voters who have no interest in voting will not bother to create or update a voter registration record. Elections BC can do its part to ensure British Columbia has an accessible electoral process and that eligible voters are well-informed about their voting opportunities, but political parties and politicians must also work to engage non-voters.

From an overall perspective, the three electoral events reported on in this publication have provided Elections BC with an excellent opportunity to improve processes, and learn from experience. However, the implications from the September 12, 2005 provincial Throne Speech makes the context in which Elections BC will operate more complex and challenging during the 2006-2009 electoral cycle.

⁸ An Elections BC survey of non-voters following the May 17, 2005 election revealed that 43.5% of those who did not vote cited disassociation with politics, politicians, or the political system as the reason.

2 Elections BC Expenses

Elections BC's Expenses

The 2005 General Election, 2005 Referendum on Electoral Reform and targeted enumeration expenses are shown on the following pages. These are the costs incurred by Elections BC and include costs incurred by the 79 District Electoral Officers.

Although the expenses are reported separately for each of the three electoral events, it is difficult to completely separate them. As the referendum was held in conjunction with the election, only those costs that were incremental to election costs are reported as referendum costs; expenses that would have been incurred for the election if no referendum had been held are reported as election costs. For example, voting places were rented for the election; the referendum did not result in additional rental costs, therefore no voting place rental costs are included in the referendum expenses.

Conducting the three events concurrently resulted in economies of scale that must not be expected if such events are held separately from one another.

3 Election Financing

Election Financing

FACILITATING COMPLIANCE

The financial agents of candidates, registered political parties represented by a candidate in the election and any associated registered constituency associations must each file an election financing report with the Chief Electoral Officer within 90 days after General Voting Day. The filing deadline for the 2005 General Election was August 15, 2005.

If, during a campaign period, a registered election advertising sponsor sponsors election advertising with a value of $500 or more, an election advertising disclosure report must be filed with the Chief Electoral Officer within 90 days of General Voting Day.

For the Referendum on Electoral Reform, individuals and organizations that sponsored referendum advertising were required to register with Elections BC. They were also required to file a referendum advertising disclosure report if the value of referendum advertising sponsored between March 1, 2005, and the close of general voting on General Voting Day was $500 or more.

The electoral finance staff at Elections BC works closely with financial agents and advertising sponsors to assist with compliance with the financing provisions of the Election Act. This includes developing guides and forms and conducting training sessions. Staff also send reminder letters and make telephone calls to ensure awareness of the filing deadlines. As a result, the number of extensions to the filing deadline following the 2005 General Election decreased to 21 from 42 following the 2001 General Election, and the number of entities that filed late decreased from seven to three. No political parties, constituency associations or candidates failed to file a required election financing report.

Each report is reviewed to ensure compliance. Identified inaccuracies or errors are discussed with the financial agent or client and the report is amended. The original reports and all amendments are scanned and posted to the Elections BC website for public access.

ELECTION EXPENSES LIMITS

The base election expenses limit for candidates is $50,000. For registered political parties the expenses limit is $1.25 for every registered voter on the revised voters list for those electoral districts in which the party has a candidate on General Voting Day. These base amounts are adjusted for changes to the consumer price index. The base amount for candidates is also adjusted for candidates running in electoral districts with more than 25,000 registered voters and for those whose electoral district is sparsely populated. Registered constituency associations are prohibited from incurring election expenses except on behalf of a nominee prior to that individual becoming a registered candidate, and any such expenses are considered to be election expenses of the candidate. Therefore, constituency associations do not have an election expenses limit.

For the 2005 General Election, the expenses limit for political parties that endorsed a candidate in each of the 79 electoral districts was $3,956,686.69. Candidate election expenses limits ranged from a low of $58,636.23 to a high of $76,783.75. The average candidate election expenses limit was $65,564.62.

Election and referendum advertising sponsors are not limited in how much they may spend on advertising.

SUMMARIES OF FINANCIAL REPORTS

The following summaries include financial information from the original financing reports received by the Chief Electoral Officer. Many reports may have been amended since they were originally filed. The financial information in this report is as filed by the financial agent and has not been reviewed to ensure accuracy or completeness. Elections BC does not include cents in the summaries; there may be small differences from the original reports as a result of rounding.

REGISTERED POLITICAL PARTIES

Summaries of the election financing information filed by registered political parties start on page 69 of this report.

The election financing information provided in this report includes both the total inflows and outflows. Total inflows and total outflows may not be equal. A common cause of such a difference for registered political parties is when assets held prior to the campaign period are used, and therefore reported as election expenses but not as inflows. In addition, total inflows may be greater than total outflows because the reporting periods are different. Total inflows include income and loans received. Except for “other income”, the income reported is from January 1, 2005, until the close of voting on General Voting Day (May 17, 2005). Other income is miscellaneous income related to the election only.

Political contributions – an amount of money or the value of any property or services provided without compensation by way of donation, advance, deposit, discount or otherwise.

Transfers received – non-reciprocal receipts of money, goods or services from a registered constituency association or a candidate.

Fundraising income – the portion of income from fundraising functions that is not reported as political contributions.

Other income – income related to the election from miscellaneous sources.

Loans received – the original amount of loans received for election expenses. Some or all of the loan may have been repaid.

Total outflows are related to the campaign only and are segregated as follows:

Election expenses subject to expenses limits – the value of property or services used during a campaign period, by or on behalf of a registered political party, registered constituency association or a candidate to promote or oppose a registered political party or a candidate (e.g. advertising and campaign office expenses). The campaign period is the time between when an election is called and the close of general voting. The Election Act limits the amount of election expenses a registered political party or candidate can incur.

Election expenses not subject to expenses limits – election expenses specifically excluded from the election expenses limit (e.g. audit fees). This type of expense is described in section 203 of the Election Act.

Other expenses – the value of goods and services used outside the campaign period but in relation to the election.

Transfers given – non-reciprocal provision of money, goods or services to a registered constituency association or a candidate.

REGISTERED CONSTITUENCY ASSOCIATIONS

Summaries of the election financing information filed by registered constituency associations start on page 78 of this report.

Since registered constituency associations are prohibited from incurring election expenses on their own behalf, they do not report any expenses in their election financing reports. The only outflows reported are transfers given between January 1, 2005, and General Voting Day.

Total inflows include income and loans received. Income is from January 1, 2005, until the close of voting on General Voting Day (May 17, 2005).

Political contributions – an amount of money or the value of any property or services provided without compensation by way of donation, advance, deposit, discount or otherwise.

Fundraising income – the portion of income from fundraising functions that is not reported as political contributions.

Transfers received – non-reciprocal receipts of money, goods or services from a registered political party or a candidate.

Loans received – the original amount of loans received for election expenses. Some or all of the loan may have been repaid.

The only outflows reported by registered constituency associations in election financing reports are:

Transfers given – non-reciprocal provision of money, goods or services to a registered political party or a candidate.

CANDIDATES

Summaries of the election financing information filed by candidates start on page 92 of this report.

The election financing information provided in this report includes both the total inflows and outflows. Total inflows and total outflows may not be equal. One cause of such a difference is when items owned by the candidate prior to the campaign period are used, and therefore reported as election expenses but not as inflows.

Political contributions – an amount of money or the value of any property or services provided without compensation by way of donation, advance, deposit, discount or otherwise.

Transfers received – non-reciprocal receipts of money, goods or services from a registered political party or a registered constituency association.

Fundraising income – the portion of income from fundraising functions that is not reported as political contributions.

Other income – income from miscellaneous sources such as interest income.

Loans received – the original amount of loans received for election expenses. Some or all of the loan may have been repaid.

Total outflows are segregated as follows:

Election expenses subject to expenses limits – the value of property or services used during a campaign period, by or on behalf of a registered political party, registered constituency association or a candidate to promote or oppose a registered political party or a candidate (e.g. advertising and campaign office expenses). The campaign period is the time between when an election is called and the close of general voting. The Election Act limits the amount a registered political party or candidate can spend on election expenses.

Election expenses not subject to expenses limits – election expenses specifically excluded from the election expenses limit (e.g. nomination deposit and audit fees). This type of expense is described in section 203 of the Election Act.

Other expenses – the value of goods and services used outside the campaign period but in relation to the election.

Transfers given – non-reciprocal provision of money, goods or services to a registered political party or a registered constituency association.

REGISTERED ELECTION ADVERTISING SPONSORS

The following definitions are relevant to election advertising sponsors:

Election advertising – advertising used during a campaign period to promote or oppose, directly or indirectly, a candidate or registered political party.

Contributions – money provided to a sponsor of election advertising during the period beginning six months before an election is called and ending on General Voting Day.

Amount of sponsor's assets used – the value of the sponsor's assets used to pay for election advertising. This amount does not include contributions referred to above.

Value of election advertising – the market value of preparing and conducting election advertising.

Under section 244 of the Election Act, a registered advertising sponsor is not required to file a disclosure report if, during the campaign period (Writ Day to General Voting Day), the election advertising sponsored did not have a total value of $500 or more. Summaries of disclosure reports for election advertising sponsors who sponsored election advertising with a total value of $500 or more start on page 171 of this report.

ORDERS OF THE CHIEF ELECTORAL OFFICER

Section 280 of the Election Act establishes the authority of the Chief Electoral Officer to make specific or general orders under certain circumstances.

There were 20 orders made by the Chief Electoral Officer relating to the 38th provincial general election.

ORD007-2005

May 4, 2005

A nominee was granted an extension to the deadline to submit the nomination documents required by s. 54 of the Election Act in order to be a candidate. The nominee was given incorrect information and did not understand that nomination documents must be filed with the District Electoral Officer for the electoral district in which the individual is seeking election.

ORD008-2005

May 9, 2005

A voter's ballot was inadvertently not placed in a secrecy envelope and certification envelope at the time of voting. The certification and secrecy envelopes containing the election and referendum ballots for three voters who voted in a district electoral office were opened at initial count in order to determine which one was missing the ballot. Without examining the markings on the ballot, the District Electoral Officer placed the ballot in the secrecy envelope for the appropriate voter, and the secrecy envelopes and certification envelopes for all three voters were then resealed until final count.

ORD009-2005

May 10, 2005

An election official provided a voter with a list of candidates for the incorrect electoral district. The voter did not realize her mistake until after she had placed her marked ballots in a secrecy and certification envelope and left the district electoral office. The voter was permitted to cast a ballot in the election for the electoral district of Yale-Lillooet, despite having already mistakenly cast a ballot for a candidate in the Penticton-Okanagan Valley electoral district. The certification envelope containing the incorrectly marked ballots remained unopened at final count.

ORD010-2005

May 14, 2005

Five voters who were erroneously assigned to a neighbouring voting area rather than the special voting area in which they were resident were permitted to vote as part of the special voting area.

ORD011-2005May 16, 2005

A voter was mistakenly informed at an advance voting opportunity that her district was Nelson-Creston and was instructed to vote for candidates in the incorrect district. The voter was permitted to cast a ballot for the correct electoral district and referendum on electoral reform. The certification envelope containing the ballots cast by this voter for the incorrect district at advance voting remained unopened at final count.

ORD012-2005May 17, 2005

Due to an error by an election official, a voter's marked referendum ballot was inadvertently not placed in the certification envelope with the marked write-in election ballot but was instead placed in a second certification envelope issued to the voter and subsequently deposited separately in the ballot box. To correct this, the two certification envelopes containing the ballots cast by a voter were attached together and considered as a single certification envelope at final count.

ORD013-2005May 17, 2005

A voter had voted in the district electoral office for her electoral district, but had mistakenly marked the ballot from a list other than the list of candidates for that electoral district. The voter did not realize her error until she had left the district electoral office. The voter was permitted to cast a ballot for the correct electoral district and referendum on electoral reform, and the certification envelope containing the ballots previously cast by this voter at the district electoral office was not opened at final count.

ORD014-2005May 17, 2005

An election official at an advance voting location mistakenly placed an absentee voter's marked election and referendum ballots directly into the ballot box. When the error was discovered, the election official issued a second election ballot to the voter and placed the marked ballot in a secrecy envelope and then in the appropriate certification envelope for the voter. The marked write-in ballot placed in the ballot box without a certification envelope was removed at initial count and set aside as a spoiled ballot.

ORD015-2005May 17, 2005

The hours at a voting place were extended to 8:15 p.m. (Pacific Daylight time) on May 17, 2005. The voting place was closed during voting hours on General Voting Day due to a chemical spill in the vicinity, and a replacement voting place established approximately 15 minutes away. The extension was to accommodate voters who arrived immediately before the close of general voting at the closed voting place who may otherwise have been unable to reach their assigned replacement location in time to vote.

ORD016-2005May 18, 2005

An unsigned certification envelope containing ballots cast by the voter whose personal information was omitted from the voters list for reasons of personal safety was accepted for consideration at final count. Due to a mistake by the election official, the voter was not instructed to sign the declaration on the certification envelope.

ORD017-2005May 20, 2005

An election official erred in preparing two certification envelopes for each voter who attended an absentee voting station. A referendum ballot was placed in one envelope and an election ballot in another. The two certification envelopes issued to each voter at this particular voting station were attached together and considered as a single envelope for each voter at final count.

ORD018-2005May 20, 2005

Some alternative absentee voting packages issued to voters resident in the Vancouver-Fraserview electoral district contained an ordinary rather than write-in ballot. The ballots cast by these voters were not rejected at final count on the basis that the incorrect ballot form was used.

ORD019-2005May 20, 2005

The election officials at an absentee voting opportunity did not have sufficient certification envelopes for all voters who attended the voting station. They used blank envelopes and recorded the required information, verbally administered the declaration required by s. 87(5) of the Election Act and the voters signed the envelopes to indicate their agreement with the declaration. These envelopes were accepted as valid certification envelopes for consideration at final count.

ORD020-2005May 27, 2005

The election officials at an absentee voting opportunity did not have a supply of certification envelopes when the first voter attended the voting station. They used blank envelopes and recorded the required information, verbally administered the declaration required by s. 87(5) of the Election Act and the voters signed the envelopes to indicate their agreement with the declaration. These envelopes were accepted as valid certification envelopes for consideration at final count.

ORD021-2005May 27, 2005

An election official erred in preparing two certification envelopes for each voter who attended an absentee voting station. A referendum ballot was placed in one envelope and an election ballot in another. The two certification envelopes issued to each voter at this particular voting station were attached together and considered as a single envelope for each voter at final count.

ORD022-2005May 27, 2005

The election officials at an absentee voting opportunity did not have sufficient certification envelopes for all voters who attended the voting station. They used blank envelopes and recorded the required information, verbally administered the declaration required by s. 87(5) of the Election Act and the voters signed the envelopes to indicate their agreement with the declaration. These envelopes were accepted as valid certification envelopes for consideration at final count.

ORD023-2005July 15, 2005

One candidate and one registered constituency association were granted an extension to the August 15, 2005 deadline for filing with the Chief Electoral Officer their election financing reports for the 2005 provincial general election.

ORD024-2005July 15, 2005

One candidate and one registered constituency association were granted an extension to the August 15, 2005 deadline for filing with the Chief Electoral Officer their election financing reports for the 2005 provincial general election.

ORD025-2005July 25, 2005

One candidate and one registered constituency association were granted an extension to the August 15, 2005 deadline for filing with the Chief Electoral Officer their election financing reports for the 2005 provincial general election.

ORD025-2005August 31, 2005

Ten candidates, four registered constituency associations and one registered political party were granted an extension to the August 15, 2005 deadline for filing with the Chief Electoral Officer their election financing reports for the 2005 provincial general election.

Appendix B

PLURALITY OF VOTES BY ELECTORAL DISTRICT

The electoral system presently in use throughout Canada is most often referred to as ‘first-past-the-post.’ However, this title is somewhat misleading because it implies that a threshold of votes must be obtained for a person to be elected.

The more accurate term for our current voting system is ‘single member plurality’ (SMP). This title signifies that one candidate per geographic district is elected on the basis of obtaining more votes than any other candidate.

In Canadian provincial elections, the candidate with the highest number of votes in an electoral district (also called a ‘riding’ or ‘constituency’) wins a seat in the Legislative Assembly. The leader of the political party that has the largest number of seats is asked by the Lieutenant Governor to form the government. Because of the nature of plurality voting systems, the party with the largest percentage of overall voter support may not be the party that forms government.

A plurality, which may or may not be a majority, is simply the largest share of the votes. In order to win a plurality, a candidate must receive a greater number of votes than any other candidate on the ballot.

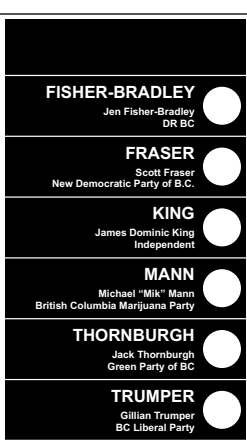

For example, if there are a total of 100 valid votes cast, with one candidate receiving 49 votes, and the other two candidates receiving 40 and 11 votes respectively, the candidate with 49 votes will have a plurality of nine votes (9%) over the closest opponent. The percentage of popular vote achieved by the leading candidate (49% in this example) does not need to be a majority of the votes in order for the candidate to be elected.

Political analysts agree that the plurality of votes indicates the degree of competition in the election in an electoral district. Some believe a small plurality, or ‘close race,’ is a major factor in voter participation.

The following pages provide a copy of the candidate ballots used in each of the 79 electoral districts in the province during the 38th provincial general election. Beside each is listed:

- the name of candidate elected,
- political party represented,
- number of registered voters,
- percentage of registered voters who voted,
- percentage of popular vote received,
- plurality of votes over the second place candidate, and
- percentage of the plurality out of the total valid votes cast.

For more detailed information on the voting results within each of the electoral districts, please see the Statement of Votes, 38th Provincial General Election, May 17, 2005.
